Career planning and development
Why do career planning?

• The process clarifies your career goals and helps you prepare for the next stage of your career

• If you have no idea what the next stage looks like, you need to be proactive about exploring options

• The NIH wants you to

Job Search & Action Plan
CV’s, applying, networking, interviews

Focusing
What organizations are a good fit?
What do I need to be competitive?
Who can connect me to these organizations?

Exploring
What options are out there? What jobs fit my skills? What careers use them? What environments do I want to work in?

Self assessment
Who am I? What are my interests? What are my work-related values? What is my work style?

Self-Assessment

• Abilities/Strengths
  – Something you are innately good at

• Skills
  – Learned task that can be taught

• Values
  – A core belief that motivates you

Most of us are not proficient at self-assessment. Therefore tools and feedback is important for accurate self-assessment
